Editorial Policy

The Nigerian Journal of Medical Sociology is an annual publication of the Medical Sociology Sub-Group, Nigerian Anthropological and Sociological Practitioners Association (NASA). It is an academic journal that publishes empirical and theoretical works that address problems in the areas of health, illness and Medical approach from sociological perspectives. Researchers within and outside the academia are invited to submit for peer review and publication, well researched articles (not more than fifteen pages), typed on A4 size paper, font 12 MSW and double spaced. References should be in A.P.A style. Note however the Editor-in-Chief, the Editorial Board, and NASA (individually or collectively), do not assume responsibility for contents of papers published and are hereby absolved of any legal liability. Authors are in every way responsible for the contents of their published papers and should ensure accuracy of facts. All correspondence should be addressed to Prof. Ignatius Uche Nwankwo, Editor – in – Chief, The Nigerian Journal of Medical Sociology, Department of Sociology/Anthropology, Nnamdi Azikiwe University, Awka, Anambra State, Nigeria.
